Background & Experience

With 15 years in the financial sector, Lou Dondero consults with select financial advisors, private wealth bankers, and their high-net worth clients, specializing in supplemental retirement planning, wealth transfer, long term care, and risk mitigation strategies. Having previously worked as an investment banker, Lou understands financial advisors' need for a trusted partner that can provide quick and accurate solutions; communicates complex strategies into clear, actionable terms; and can assist in developing blueprints for client presentations, client acquisitions, and growth strategies.

Lou holds a bachelor's degree in History and Political Sciences from Florida State University, where he attended as scholarship athlete, served as captain of the Swim & Dive team, and was honored as both Academic and Athletic All-American. He holds his Series 6 and 63 registrations and requisite insurance licenses. In his youth, Lou was an Eagle Scout and was highly involved with the Order of the Arrow, a group of elite scouts that upholds the traditions and history of Boy Scouts for future generations. Lou currently resides in Atlanta, GA, where he enjoys fly fishing, golf, and serving as a judge for local and regional diving meets in his spare time.
